Alleged safe cracking Burglary arrests made

GRANITE CITY — Investigative work landed two burglary suspects in custody, and enabled recovery of about $2,900 and a car allegedly purchased with more of the foot taken in the burglary of a safe.

John Chamness, 22, of the 4500 block of Maryville Road, and Donald J. Miliello, 25, of the same address were charged Tuesday with the burglary of Pep Car Wash in the 3300 block of Nameoki Road.

The suspects allegedly entered the car wash through a broken window Sunday night and forced open a safe, stealing about $5,100 in weekend receipts.

The broken window was spotted by a patrolman on routine patrol shortly after the alleged entry.

Informations were issued Wednesday by the Madison County State's Attorney's Office further charging Chamness with two additional counts of burglary according to Detective Sgt. Richard Schardan.

The new charges allege Chamness burglarized Pizza Hut in the 1500 block of Johnson Road on two occasions, in June and July 1988.

Several other police agencies are interested in talking to the two suspects, local police said.

And the Granite City investigation was continuing Wednesday afternoon, Assistant Police Chief Ron Selph said.

Chamness was picked up at a Granite City motel and held on a $10,000 bond.

Miliello was arrested Monday on a warrant alleging probation violation.

Detectors Mike Gagich and Ron Landman worked on the case with Schardan and were commended Wednesday by Selph.

Special meet set on county building plan

By John D. Milazzo

EDWARDSVILLE — A special pre-meeting of the full Madison County Board has been set for March 8, when members are expected to be asked their opinions on a timetable for construction of a new administration building.

The board was asked to consider the construction plans and a comprehensive renovation of the County Courthouse after members of the finance and buildings committees last week were unable to reach agreement on a timetable for the work.

Some committee members, including Fred Dalton, D-Collingsville, have expressed concern the proposed $21 million administration building and renovation project, if tackled at one time, could necessitate a bond issue.

When the county last year established an one-quarter-cent sales tax, officials said new tax revenues should be sufficient to pay for both the building and renovation improvements. (See COUNTY, Page 3A)

Nichols gets airfield back, intact

PONTOON BEACH — Bill Nichols now has his airfield back intact.

The Village Board of Trustees approved a de-annexation ordinance at Tuesday night's meeting, returning a small plot of land to the not-for-profit owner of Nichols' property. That area had remained inside the village when the rest of the 140-acre airfield was de-annexed in October.

De-annexing that bit of land was requested by Nichols.

The property in question was described by Village Attorney Keith Jensen as roughly a 50-foot strip on the south side of State Ave. near Brutes Road.

" Didn't we do this before?" asked Trustee Louis Whitsell when the ordinance was read.

"There is one last corner on the north side under side of Lakewood Airport that is not de-annexed," Jensen replied.

Pontoon Beach still surrounds it (the airport)," Jensen said. The village boundaries remain roughly the same after the de-annexation of the last piece of Nichols' property, Jensen said.

In his request for de-annexation, Nichols said he did not feel it was in his best interest for the property to remain in the territorial district of Pontoon Beach.

The land is in the Horseshoe Lake area of State Aid 25.

Nichols objected to annexation of the airfield almost from the start and earlier pursued litigation to keep the village would not give up the land.

A court hearing on the issue was scheduled in October when trustees voted to de-annex the property.

The small parcel of land near State Aid 25 and Brutes Road was excluded from the initial de-annexation.

Nichols was unavailable for comment Wednesday, but last week said he hoped the trustees would approve the de-annexation at Tuesday's meeting, avoiding further litigation.

The de-annexation Tuesday night allows the village corporation to remain contiguous, retaining an additional 2,400 acres of land annexed at the same time as the airfield, Jensen said.

A total of 2,400-plus acres, including the airport, was annexed in June 1986. The annexation petition was validated by Circuit Judge Edward Ferguson, then an associate judge.

At that time Ferguson said no objections had been filed before the hearing and those in favor of the plan showed sufficient evidence to indicate at least 50 percent of the landowners, electors and owners of more than 50 percent of the land consented to being annexed.

The 1986 annexation doubled the size of the village and reached the then proposed Interstate 255 interchanges at State Aid 35, Illinois 162 and Interstate 294.

Scholarships: Don't let opportunity get away

GCHS graduates go to college.

Locally, many organizations including the Granite City Junior Service League, Pontoon Beach Lions Club, Disabled American Veterans and Sheltered Insurance Companies, just to name a few, all offer scholarships.

The foundation is composed of about 15 businesses and organizations which fund the program. This year, the foundation will be offering about 14 scholarships worth $900 each.

In advising students, Haug tells them, "There is money out there to get, but you have to go about it in the right way."

Haug stressed the importance of carefully following the instructions, applications, filling in all the blanks and meeting the deadline requirements.

"A lot of kids get really frustrated with it and don't follow the instructions," Haug said.

"For many organizations, applications not following the guidelines get thrown away. With so many applications, it's a way of weeding some out."

Mark Brown, financial aid and admissions assistant at the Granite City Campus of Belleville Area College, agrees.

"Some of them have to do a little more work than they really want to do just to get the applications," Brown said. "Then they don't bother."

Brown said about 30 percent of GCC students receive some kind of financial aid.

GCC offers 19 annual full-time tuition and room and board maximum of $800 to GCHS graduates attending the school. The deadline to apply is May 1, 1989.

The $23,250,000 federal aid available to rehabilitate pumping stations and floodgates, to dredge drainage canals and to clean up underground water is unprecedented, Broadway said.

It cannot be renewed, if it is not utilized now, because of the federal government's emphasis on construction rather than maintenance and repair. Restoration, operating and maintenance costs traditionally must be borne by the community itself, Broadway said.

Hassler described national flood insurance, which he said is administered by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

FEMA will declare the local floodplain unprotected if the election fails. Col. James E. Corbin, St. Louis district engineer, has said, FEMA regulations have blocked any new

Accident ends in 7 charges

GRANITE CITY — Seven traffic charges, including driving under the influence of alcohol, were leveled at Andrew J. Ingle, 28, of the 1700 block of State Street following a traffic accident at 12:30 a.m. Feb. 10.

A van allegedly operated by Ingle, 28, of the 1700 block of State Street and left the roadway at 15th Street, hitting and knocking down an Illinois Power electric light pole.

The van continued on and struck the side of a flatbed trailer parked in a parking area on the west side of State Street, damaging lights on the trailer. The trailer was backed up and was driven from the scene, authorities said.

After a description of the van was broadcast, the vehicle was seen by an officer as it traveled west on 17th Street.

The van had lost the left rear tire and was being driven on the wheel rim, causing sparks on the roadway.

The driver pulled into an alley between State and Edison Avenue and to the rear of a residence in the 1700 block of State, where Ingle was arrested.

Ingle sustained a laceration to the side of the neck but declined immediate medical attention, police said.

He was booked for DUI, leaving the scene of an accident, driving without a valid driver's license, driving with an invalid registration, improper lane usage, failure to give information at an accident scene and failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

VLTC leak battle drops from roof to floor

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

VENICE While still experiencing problems with a leaky roof, crews have temporarily shifted from ceiling to floor at the Venice Lincoln Technical Center, where a steam leak is shooting down the boiler every four to six hours.

Depending on what initial tests show, some of the gymnasium floor may have to be torn up to gain access to the pipes.

"The furnace is going off because of low water levels every four to six hours," Director Pete Ponce told the District 3 board members at a recent meeting.

A custodian was paid overtime to maintain the level during the weekend. Ponce said that work was necessary to maintain the building's temperature and keep pipes from freezing.

The board approved a bid from American Boiler for a maximum of $1,640 to conduct tests to find the leak.

Ponce said, "I crawl spaces through the floor, give access to most of the pipe, and all of the pipe that can be reached has been checked."

"We have looked everywhere that is available to us to look," Ponce said. "We cannot find the leak."

The remainder of the pipe is in clay tile beneath the gym floor, Ponce said.

He said the lines of the 35-year-old boiler had been repaired similarly 10 years ago.

A company that Ponce contacted to seek a bid told him that the center was lucky to have "gone with that repair this long."

Ponce said a representative of American Boiler told him the problem is most likely in the steam return line.

Ponce said the return line would leak faster than the steam line.

Ponce said, "That's probably why we lose the furnace every four to six hours."

Although that may be the problem, Ponce said he believes there are a variety of possibilities.

"Unfortunately, it may mean tearing up the floor to get down to the job," Ponce said.

Board member George Wade said the problem could be with both.

"It's entirely possible that it could be losing steam on one side and condensation and pressure on the other," Wade said.

Some alternatives to avoid the problem in the future include raising the pipes above the floor and running them around the building and back into the boiler room. Estimates for this work ranged from $8,500 to $12,000.

"I don't know what we'll have to do with it eventually but right now, I just want to find out what's wrong and see how much it will cost," Ponce said.

Since the building is to be empty when the testing is done, it will be closed during the upcoming teacher institute day, Friday, Feb. 22, be used.

Ponce said he would work out arrangements with the company.

Ice rink lease proposed by local man

By John Rushing
Sports editor

GRANITE CITY — A resident of Granite City has expressed interest in purchasing or leasing the Wilson Park Ice Rink.

Glen Bailey, a mechanic for Wonder Bread and a member of the Granite City Ice Hockey Association, is currently conducting a feasibility study regarding the skating facility.

Bailey wrote to the Park Board on Dec. 28 and the letter was read at the regular monthly board meeting by Steve Kessel, director of parks and recreation. Kessel had no additional information at that time and the board decided to await further action by Bailey.

"Since then, Kessel has, upon request, provided Bailey with receipt and disbursement data of the facility," Kessel said.

"I can tell you this," Kessel said. "A sale will not happen, but we could be open to a lease agreement. Park property is always open to sell." The board will confer with its lawyers on the topic.

Discussing the ice hockey association, Kessel said, "They built three dressing rooms for us last year. It's a fine organization."

Bailey has watched the operation and development of the ice rink with keen interest over the years. His two sons, now ages 20 and 24, participated in amateur skating, hockey playing and coaching.

He said he feels the rink needs many improvements, and yet he wants to keep it in private management. He would like to "rebuild the hockey program," ultimately matching the park's activities occurring in the last 10 years.

"I feel it could be a help for hockey as a sport and for skating as a whole."

Bailey said he has other ideas for the rink, such as by holding large, philanthropic events in the future. He would like to see the facility used during non-ice-skating seasons as a place for area teenagers to go during the summer evenings.

"I would just like to keep it open (in the summer), and maybe put a disc jockey in there," he said.

The Park District has been working on expanding the summer rink season, according to Kessel. It can be used for soccer with a carpet on the concrete surface, but "most people want to play outdoors then," he said. "I can get really hot in there."

The park board has currently housed a Fourth of July craft show, and is also available for additional use during the holiday festivities in case of inclement weather, Kessel said.

Bailey said he is aware that he would most likely not turn a large profit after either buying or leasing the facility, but that would be his intent. Since he does not view it as an investment, he would be satisfied to simply run a break-even operation.

Kessel echoes the fact that the ice rink does not generate a financial bonanza for the Park District, nor does the park strive for this.

"We are tax-supported, and our concentration is on keeping the fees low," Kessel said, "so that the greatest number of people can have access."

Bailey hopes to meet with the board at its next session.

"It (buying or leasing) might not be possible," he said, "but at least I can say I tried."

WHOPPER CHOPPERS surround Donna Carter, a staff member of the Dental Health Theater. The $20,000 set of 3-foot-high lower teeth is one of only two sets in existence. At right, Snoopy, decorated for Valentine's Day, greets visitors at the entrance to the theater on Laclede's Landing.

A BIG TOOTHBRUSH is used by Carter to explain the importance of a well-made brush in proper oral hygiene.

American teeth

In better shape, but there's room for improvement

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

This is the 46th year in which National Children's Dental Health Month has been celebrated, and those 40 years have seen dramatic improvements in the oral health of Americans and enormous savings on dental health care costs, said a spokesman for the Greater St. Louis Dental Society. Don Guithues, executive director of the society, credited the improvements to scientific breakthroughs, improved equipment and techniques and widespread community information about dental health.

Chief among the advances are the fluoridation of water, and the discovery of the relationship between plaque and tooth decay and the development of plastic tooth sealants and high-speed drills have also contributed.

When the benefits of fluoride were discovered in 1948, tooth decay was a major dental health problem, Guithues said. Missing teeth accounted for about 9 percent of the rejections of service recruits when the U.S. entered World War II.

If the effects of fluoride in decay prevention was discovered by a Colorado Springs (Colo.) dentist who puzzled over the mottled staining and high levels of decay on the tooth enamel of his patients. Now known as fluorosis, the mottling was caused by high concentrations of natural fluoride in the region's water.

Grand Rapids, Mich., was the first community to have its water supply artificially fluoridated in 1945.

The National Institute of Dental Research was established in 1946, and together with the American Dental Association it conducted a nationwide fluoridation of community water supplies. Today, 60 percent of Americans drink water artificially fluoridated by one part per million. It does not prevent decay but doesn't cause mottling.

Granite City, Madison and Venice were pioneers in the first application of fluoride to children's teeth.

Fluoride is still considered to be the single most effective weapon against tooth decay, and most toothpastes contain it.

At a recent half of the 32 million U.S. school children have no decay in their permanent teeth, according to a 1986-87 study by the National Institute of Dental Research.

The effects of fluoride in decay prevention was discovered by a Colorado Springs (Colo.) dentist who puzzled over the mottled staining and high levels of decay on the tooth enamel of his patients. Now known as fluorosis, the mottling was caused by high concentrations of between 1962 and 1986, Guithues said.

But much remains to be done.

A variety of gum diseases, collectively called periodontal disease, are now regarded as the major dental problem.

In the 1960s, a sticky, colorless film of bacteria called plaque was identified as the cause of periodontal disease. Plaque creates acids which eat away at gums, tooth enamel and supporting bone.

Anywhere from 5 percent to 40 percent of 12- to 15-year-olds already have some form of periodontal disease. Three of every four persons in the U.S. have it.

Guithues said dental researchers believe a cavity-free generation could be achieved if fluoride use was combined with daily brushing and flossing, healthy eating, regular dental care and the use of plastic sealants on children's permanent molars.

Today, dentists are using antibiotics to treat some forms of gum disease, and researchers are looking for a vaccine to prevent tooth decay. But with rare exceptions, the condition is due to neglect and can be prevented by daily brushing and flossing.

Recent studies have proven that brushing reduces an early form of periodontal disease, called gingivitis, characterized by red, swollen and bleeding gums.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services has made the reduction of gingivitis and periodontal disease high priorities for 1989.

Guithues said parents have become more aware of the importance of early, regular dental visits. In 1983, 29 percent of children between ages 2 and 4 and 67 percent between 5 and 17 had visited a dentist the previous year. By 1986, these percentages had increased to 33 and 76 percent, respectively.

"Tooth loss and bone loss don't really have to happen," Guithues said.

Dentists advise parents to start with care early — right after birth. In fact, by using a soft, damp washcloth or gauze pad to clean their infants' gums after feeding.

At age 1, they should use a soft toothbrush and a small amount of toothpaste. This is also the time for the child's first visit to the dentist. Not only have several procedures to come in, but the visits help accustom the child to dental procedures.

"Usually, the dentists don't even do anything the first time," Guithues said. "They just want the child to make the first visit a pleasant experience."

He emphasized that with good oral hygiene habits developed early in life, a child's teeth can last a lifetime.

These show stars get brush

ST. LOUIS — "Please keep off the teeth," reads a sign on the railing surrounding the stage at the Dental Health Theater, 721 N. First St., on Laclede's Landing.

The theater, which is open to the public at no charge, is a drama about dental health that has been presented for 46 years, over 250,000 since it opened in 1977. It puts on two to four 40-minute shows a day on proper oral hygiene, tailored to the age level of the audience.

Most of the visitors are school groups. Friday, for instance preschoolers from Central Baptist School, 3940 Illinois 111, Pontoon Beach, will be entertained by a "Peanuts" cartoon called "Tooth Brushing" and a marionette skit featuring "Snoopy" and his dog "Lucky" and their encounter with "Mr. Tooth Decay" and the Tooth Fairy.

A theater staffer will conduct a tooth-by-tooth tour of the mouth using a set of 16 three-foot-high fibreglass teeth set up on the stage of the smallish first floor theater.

Staffer Donna Carter said the teeth are one of only two such sets in the world and cost $20,000 to have constructed. The other set is in Los Angeles, she said.

The theater is funded by contributions from local dentists, the Dental Auxiliary, dental supply companies, the Greater St. Louis Dental Society and grants from companies such as McDonald Douglas, which recently donated $2,000 for equipment to reach hearing-impaired audiences.

On Tuesday, the theater at an a.m. show was 47 pupils from the second grades at St. Stephen Protomartyr School in south St. Louis. The visit to the theater culminated lessons the kids had been getting at school about oral hygiene for National Children's Dental Health Month, said teacher Annette Leatherman.

The children sat in rows on the carpeted steps facing the stage, where Donna Carter gave a short introductory speech about the four types of teeth they're used for and how to care for them.

Carter told the kids that teeth are used not only to cut, tear, crush and grind food, but to pronounce words with the help of the tongue and, of course, to smile.

She instructed them to hold their tongues back from their teeth and try to say, "Silly Sally sat in a saucer." The resulting gibberish made the children smile and giggle.

They giggled some more and went "ugh" during the cartoon when Lucy used a toothbrush. Snoopy had just finished using it.

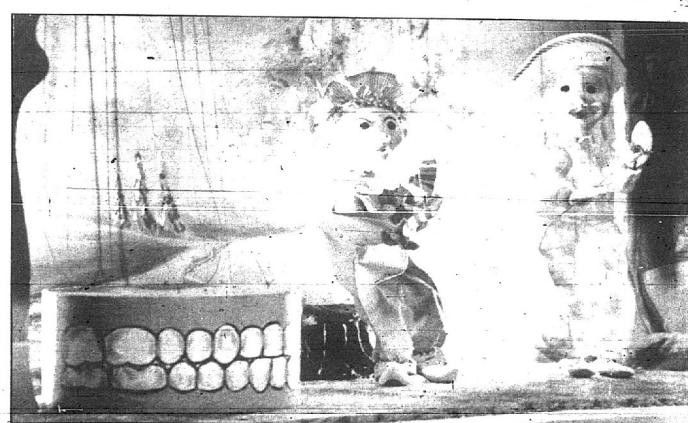

Mixed in with entertainment were three rules of oral hygiene: 1) Eat the right foods, such as meat, eggs, fruits, vegetables, milk and bread, and avoid candy. 2) Brush and floss after meals. 3) Visit your dentist twice a year.

It was a painless and effective method of teaching about an important topic. Quizzed afterwards by a reporter, students Cate Corcoran, 10, of Glen Carbon, Tanya Schaefer, 10, and Mikey Letz flawlessly repeated the three rules.

"Most of them study about tooth care before hand," Carter said.

But kids will be kids.

"Yesterday when a group left, we found a lollipop stick on the floor," she said, laughing.

'Snoopy' is helped by the tooth fairy during a skit.

Words are like seeds. Sowing is like planting. You shall have whatsoever you say. You will have a harvest. This is not just logic, it works.

Speaking words of malice, hate, envy, or other mean words reap what we have sown. Sowing words of love, peace, harmony, and joy, means we shall reap the same.

The real value of having this knowledge is that you can control our happiness by controlling the words we speak. We are in control of our own state of being, not someone or something else.

No Vietnam in Metro East

Vietnam, Afghanistan and now East St. Louis?

Various Metro East officials have been writing to the governor, asking him to end a special State Police patrol. But without that patrol, we have a major favorable impact on the overall state budget, and it could have a decidedly unfavorable effect on the status of law enforcement in East St. Louis, which lacks adequate funds, personnel and equipment.

The patrol has been assigned since July 1986, trying to curb robberies and violence and to hamper street gangs' activities. We don't suggest that the troopers remain forever, but we have seen nothing in recent months indicating they are no longer needed.

One bridge down, one to go

For those thousands of local readers who cross the Poplar Street Bridge on a regular basis, we offer little hope of convenience in coming months. But the mere fact that the bridge's bumpy pavement is about to be smoothed is still cause for celebration.

With rehabilitation of the Martin Luther King Bridge winding down, work is scheduled to begin about March 1 on the first phase of renovation of the Poplar Street Bridge complex.

When the King Bridge reopens sometime between May 15 and June 15, some ramps and roadways of Poplar Street will close.

The Illinois Department of Transportation is coming to the public's natural hand, to plead for sensible driving. In coming months — not unlike the type we have witnessed since the King Bridge closed for repairs last year.

Advance publicity caused last April's closure of the bridge to have less of an impact than expected. IDOT predicted delays of up to an hour, but the delays have been only 10 to 15 minutes because of the number of people who have used alternate routes or who switched to buses and car and van pools. A common sense approach.

IDOT hopes to repeat that success this year. But anyone who remembers the rash of traffic woes that developed the last time

Poplar saw major repair knows that the driving public doesn't always react the way it should.

The first phase of work on the Poplar Street Bridge will involve the eastbound and westbound outer roads, or collector-distributor roads, in East St. Louis. The main line will not be part of the first phase. The first phase will include widening one-lane sections of the outer roadways to two lanes.

The main line is scheduled to be closed for two years beginning in the spring of 1990.

The $15.8 million first phase should be completed in mid-December 1989.

Six more contracts will take repairs through the next four to five years. Incentives will be offered to contractors to finish the work as quickly as possible, the same procedure that is currently going to allow the King project to finish ahead of schedule.

The King span is expected to handle 15,000 vehicles a day. The rehabilitated bridge will have four lanes, twice as many as were open in recent years. That will carry far more traffic than in the past, and should relieve some of the Poplar burden, but it won't relieve it all.

Common sense will. Start planning now the best alternate routes to take to work or play, and you'll save yourself plenty of traffic-jam headaches later.

Nursing home money crunch

Nursing homes in Metro East generally are well run, but there are unfortunate situations in Illinois where ailing elderly persons are neglected or abused. Does the blame rest mainly on certain nursing home operators or is there enough to go around for other parties?

A lawsuit filed this month by the Illinois Health Care Association, representing about 300 nursing homes, targets the state government as a major contributor to the problem. This inevitably will focus further attention on the continuing argument over whether revenue is sufficient for the state to meet its basic responsibilities. A related suit is planned in state court.

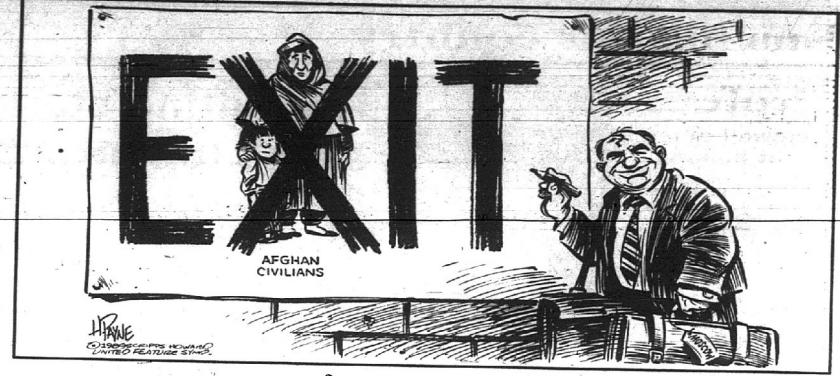

Filed in the federal district court in Chicago, the lawsuit names not only the state government but the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. It notes that the Boren Amendment to the Social Security Act says that payment rates to nursing homes "must be sufficient to meet the costs that must be incurred by efficient and economic health-care facilities."

A Collinsville nursing home operator estimated that it takes $1,400 to $2,200 a month to care for a typical patient, compared to the state's current maximum payment of $1,140. This in effect shifts costs to residents who are not Public Aid recipients.

Of the 107,000 now in Illinois nursing homes, 55 percent are state aid recipients, illustrating the big scope of the problem. Wealthy families can afford nursing home care, but for many persons who do not qualify for financial aid the idea of entering a nursing home is out of reach.

The lawsuit contends that payment levels are being determined primarily on the basis of Illinois' budget difficulties rather than patients' needs, a law violation.

No "money tree" is available to provide a full solution, but the suit spotlights questions that deserve answers, and soon. If private and state authorities are going to monitor the quality of nursing home care, which they should do, they cannot ignore one of the essentials for maintaining quality — money.

'Yes' vote key to safety, jobs

To the editor:

Everyone in the Metro East Sanitary District (MESD) — everyone with a home here, or a job here or a business here — has a stake in the battle to keep the region reclaiming this region as a floodplain.

Why should we care? There are many reasons.

First, there is the threat of a major flood. We are protected from high river waters by a network of 27 floodgates. The Corps of Engineers reports that all are vulnerable to failure.

We have not worried about that danger much in the last 30 years, because the floodgates always passed and kept the water away when the Mississippi River rose beyond floodstage.

Hundreds of residents fled their homes for shelter in churches and schools. They lost their personal possessions.

One man drowned in a city street. Water covered the roofs of cars and water waisted in hundreds of homes and businesses.

It was Mother Nature's warning. Next time, it can strike anywhere in the region.

The Corps of Engineers reports that each of the 27 floodgates — and the homes and businesses protected by them — are as vulnerable as was East St. Louis in October 1986.

The East St. Louis floodgate has since been repaired, largely with emergency funds from the State of Illinois. Although that city remains vulnerable, it is more likely to be someone else's turn to suffer in the next time.

Jobs, property values and the entire economic future are at stake. Failure to rehabilitate the flood control system will severely cripple this region economically.

Despite the economic decline experienced in the last decade or two, this area remains a prime location for the establishment of new businesses, new industries and new jobs.

The Corps of Engineers is working to stimulate the economy of this region until the flood protection system is rehabilitated. We will see only continued decline until then.

Surface water and groundwater problems are devaluing homes and properties in the region by millions of dollars.

Every home in the region has lost hundreds of dollars or even thousands of dollars in sale value because of buyer fear of floated and broken sewer lines, flooded basements and weakened structures.

The water table, rising due to increased hillside runoff and reduced drawing of groundwater for industrial and manufacturing purposes, causes increased damage every year.

The federally-funded project that brings out 'Yes' votes here Feb. 28 can render this problem as well as achieving the goals of protecting job opportunities and avoiding a river flood.

A system of deep wells and pumps is planned to lower the water table and keep surface water from pooling on streets and flowing into properties.

We send millions of tax dollars to Washington every year. Now we have a chance to get a big chunk of it back.

Our area can receive $23,250,000 in federal flood-control and groundwater grants.

As noted, the grants would fund projects to buttress our defenses against the water and raise the water table deeper below the surface, keeping it away from sewer lines and basements. Both actions are necessary if this region is to have a future.

The Corps of Engineers is repairing and replacing all the pumps and floodgates and lift stations; dredging all canals and channels and ditches.

This will create many jobs over the next five years and cost $200,000.

The second task is installation of deep wells and pumping facilities, to draw down the water table and to capture and pump excess water into the river before it can enter homes. This would be done at a cost of $8,000,000.

The federal government would pay most of these costs. Illinois is chipping in and the local task would be carried largely by corporate taxpayers.

The federal offer was obtained largely as a result of one of the last major initiatives of the late U.S. Rep. Melvin Price. Uncle Sam is willing to pay $23,250,000 of the total cost of both projects.

The total for both projects is $30,000,000. The federal share is 75 percent.

The state/public lands share is about 6.5 percent — or $2,000,000.

The local share — largely borne by only about 10 percent, or $3,750,000.

On the project, all controlled by the Corps of Engineers, the MESD must operate and maintain the new systems. Corps of Engineers standards require improvements in MESD OEM requirements of about $600,000 per year.

But we must take the offer now. If we do not provide a small local match, we will lose $23,250,000 in federal support. We would lose hundreds of jobs, we would lose protection of local property, and we would lose hopes for a prosperous future in this region.

The only way to take the offer is to pass the Metro East Sanitary District Flood Protection Question in the election on Tuesday, Feb. 28.

Violence a turnoff

The mini-series "Lonesome Dove" will go down as one of the great Western epics of all time, but it won't be remembered as the greatest, simply because it was too violent.

A fan of the $40-book, I turned in my copy to find that if the movie was anything like the Larry McMurtry novel I would want to commit to eight hours of viewing. The TV version more than anticipated that author's intentions, probably better than any novel-turned-to-film that I've ever seen.

Brutal, so unfortunately. The world of cattle men was accurately portrayed. Life in the 1880s West was gritty, bitter, frustrating, adventurous, lustful and dangerous. Men and women constantly fought over their few successes. And all of those moments melded quite nicely in this story.

But there have long believed that there are some things better left to the imagination. The director of "Lonesome Dove" didn't agree. Imagine a drawn-out sequence of a body being close-up of hangings, and fight scenes in which men's faces are literally shattered. That's the kind of stuff we witnessed for four nights.

What gratification was there for us in seeing an arrow tortuously pushed through a leg because it couldn't be simply pulled out? What calm could have panned away and the audience could have been afforded an off-camera scream. That would have been more effective.

I'm not mean-spirited. I've seen enough cable TV and video to do bloodletting to know what is possible through special effects.

But there is something new for now. The West has fallen across America welcomed kids into their family room to pass along their cultural love. Undoubtedly many youngsters were shooed to another room for a couple of scenes, for which there was little advance warning.

John Wayne killed a lot of Indians and spilled a lot less blood than he got the part. "Lonesome Dove" on the other hand, lingered over death and mutilation and detracted from what otherwise could have been the finest eight hours ever assembled for television.

'88 river traffic here high despite drought

GRANITE CITY — Despite the 1988 drought and resulting low water, cargo tonnage passing through the St. Louis bi-state area came within 1.6 million tons of 1987, setting a new all-time record.

Statistics compiled by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers show 79.2 MT passing through Locks 27 and 28 in Granite City in 1988. That compares with the record of 80.8 MT, set in 1983.

The navigation locks on the Upper Mississippi River, above the confluence with the Illinois River, handled new record tonnage in '88.

Lock 27 at Clarksville, Mo., and Lock 28, at Wauvil, Mo., each handled 37.9, MT. The previous records, in 1983, were 37.3 and 37.4, respectively.

River conditions during 1988 were definitely different. There were heavy traffic flows. Record seasonal, low-water levels were experienced during June and

July, and severe lows prevailed throughout much of the year.

Channel blockages and groundings were frequent. Restrictions on tow size and draft became the norm.

The St. Louis Engineer District found itself operating five dredges simultaneously. Two of them, the Corps' own, and the other three, were Corps dredges. Even though the Corps' work done in the past 50 years, reservoirs in the upper reaches of the Missouri

This is the first time since the early 1930s that more than three dredges were used in this reach of the river. The District spent $2.5 million more than normal for dredging in 1988, and the work continues.

Even this effort, however, could not have kept traffic moving. Even though the Corps of Engineers' work done in the past 50 years, reservoirs in the upper reaches of the Missouri

After 65 years, Bolliger closes shop

GRANITE CITY — When Bolliger Upholstering Shop, 1526 Pontoon Road, closed its doors Feb. 10, it was the end of 65 years of business.

The shop was started by the father of the final owner, Fred R. Bolliger.

Rudolph Bolliger, Fred's father, came to Granite City from Switzerland in June 1903. The elder Bolliger had learned the upholstering trade as a young boy in and around Zurich and Lucerne, Switzerland.

The day after he arrived in Granite City, he went to work at the National Enameling and Stamping Works. He worked there 20 years before opening his upholstering shop in the rear of his home at 2208 Adams St.

After eight years of business there, he opened a shop at 18th and State streets with the help of Paul Berger, the owner of Berger Tire Shop, and J.W. Holstein of Holstein and Theis Insurance Co. At the time, Fred Bolliger was made a partner in the business.

The shop was moved to 1508 Pontoon Road, then in Nameoki, Ill., shortly after Rudolph Bolliger died. The shop was moved to the final location in 1963.

Fred Bolliger has been an active member of Masonic Triple Lodge 823, Order of Eastern Star Granite Chapter 650, Tri-City Shrine Club, Alain Shrine Temple and Niedringhaus Methodist Church and was a member of the former Nameoki Volunteer Fire Department.

Olin reports record 4th quarter earnings

Olin Corp. has reported record fourth-quarter earnings of $1.01 per share, up 36 percent from the previous record fourth quarter of 74 cents in 1987.

Net income rose to $21 million, from $15 million in the previous fourth quarter.

Sales for the quarter just ended were $623 million, up 24 percent.

For the full year, earnings reached a new high of $4.63 per share, up 37 percent from $3.38 in 1987. Net income increased to $88 million from the $78 million reported for 1987. Sales for the year rose 20 percent to $2.3 billion.

John W. Johnston Jr., chairman, president and chief executive officer, said Olin had achieved both the earnings and return targets projected early last year. Return on equity rose to 14.2 percent from 10.3 percent in 1987.

"Given a modestly growing economy, Olin is well-positioned to attain its 1989 objective of 17 percent return on equity and to achieve earnings of 16 percent, continuing our progress toward the goal of 20 percent return on equity in the early 1990s."

The ratio of total debt to total capitalization rose to 50 percent from 45 percent at the end of the prior quarter as a result of the acquisition of Bridgeport Brass and GDC.

For parents, 'kiddie tax' latest IRS nightmare

By Sylvia Porter

How do you handle the onerous "kiddie" tax when it applies to you and your family? You have it with great care and a feeling of pain deep inside.

What does the "kiddie" tax mean?

It enlisted the aid of Eli J. Warren, tax attorney and consulting editor of Prentice Hall, to help explain it, show you how to handle it on your 1988 tax return and point out how to avoid it for the future.

If your child is under 14 and has unearned income of more than $1,000, the excess is taxed at the parents' highest rates.

The result is instead of paying a 10 percent tax, the child could be paying a 33 percent tax.

Consider Seth, a 3-year-old, who has two sets of grandparents. Each set put $10,000 in long-term certificates of deposit for Seth when he was born.

That was $20,000. For 1988, his interest income was $2,200.

Assuming Seth's parents are in the government bracket, he will pay a tax of $471 on his $2,200.

income. That's right: $471 on a total income of $2,200—an effective tax rate of about 21.5 percent on the little boy.

Hold on, you might be saying. Isn't there a standard deduction of $3,000 for a single taxpayer? That's more than Seth's entire income. Why couldn't that wipe out the whole tax?

Good question. The tax law has an answer—an unpleasant one. Where someone can be taxed on his or her unearned income, the tax is applied to the parents' rate. On our facts, that's 33 percent.

The next $500 is taxed at Seth's normal rate, that is, 15 percent. That takes care of $1,000 of the $2,200. The remaining $1,200 is taxed at the parents' rate. On our facts, that's 33 percent.

How about his personal exemption of $350? Well, he can't use that to offset income? Because in cases where someone can be claimed as a dependent, he loses his own dependency deduction.

The net result is that, in the name of tax reform, multitudes of youngsters will find either their savings are greatly reduced or their parents will be paying a lot of extra taxes for them.

For the 1988 tax return that you will be filing on your child's behalf, you not only file Form 1040, there is another beauty called Form 8615. That's the form you use to compute the kiddie tax, and you attach it to the tax return you file for your youngster.

To get the idea of how "simple" this form is, just look at the name of it, "Computation of Tax for Children Under Age 14 Who Have Investment Income of More Than $1,000." Enough said.

Be on guard: The form must have the child's Social Security number with your return.

Does this tough provision really come into play if the child's money came from some one other than the parents? About that, it makes no difference who supplies the capital. Our example used the grandparents.

Q. Suppose I put my daughter's money into zero coupon bonds? She can't get the money for, say, 10 years. Won't that beat this tax?

A. No — unless you put it into municipal bond zero coupons or savings bonds.

Savings bonds, if it goes into them, are taxed at the annual interest is imputed to the child and is treated as regular investment income. This means it is subject to this tax.

Q. Isn't there a newer tax law provision that does away with this tax?

A. No. I have been flooded with mail asking this same question.

Though there is indeed a new provision, it won't save a penny in taxes. This new law, along with 1989 tax returns, allows parents with children under 14 years old to report some types of children's investment income on the parents' tax return.

Before the new law, an independent child with any investment income and a total income over $500 was requested to file his or her own tax return, plus Form 8615. That may no longer be the case.

Choose investments wisely, don't get attached to them

By Bob Hardcastle

It looks to me like the contrarians are winning the war in the investment field.

Here's a dramatic example of contrary opinion. When most people anticipated that the stock market was going to move much, much higher in the fall of 1987, the market went the other way. One day the Dow Jones Industrial Average dropped 508 points, a new one-day low.

At the end of 1988, most people believed that the investment markets were going to be very slow.

The attitude was that the stock market was probably going to make new lows and inflation was still just around the corner.

The feeling that gold prices and interest rates were going to move higher was a good indication that most investors felt that inflation was occurring.

Here we are now going into the end of January and we see the opposite occurring. Interest rates are high, like they have peaked and are slowly turning downward.

Bond prices have exploded to the upside. The stock market has had a great year, with its last year's high of 2100, up around 2200. Money is starting to flow back into annuities, insurance, mutual funds, limited partnerships and the stock market. It looks like attitudes are becoming more bullish — more positive.

It is very difficult to look into the future. Like weather forecasting, it is an exact science. We do not have a crystal ball. But, in my opinion, the investment field looks more positive than it has in over a year.

About real estate

By Don Campbell

Property turnover for profit confusing

Dear Mr. Campbell:

I am a widow, 65 years old, and plan on putting my home on the market. It is a 1960, 2,600 sq. ft. home, $63,900 home, but I have $2,600 down on an $86,900 home. The difference is the lawn and a two-car garage. I plan on selling it when it is finished and making a profit. Can I do it if I do not have to move into it? I have a $200,000 loan, but don't plan to sell at this time. It's free and clear, so I work as a real estate saleswoman and things have been pretty slow.

Mrs. J.A.

Answer: There's something of an oddity here. You are one of the real estate business in your community, so while I am confounded by your question I'm also curious as to why you would think I'd know the local market better than you do. I'm also baffled by this ability of yours to hold onto these two properties for longer than 3 percent of the selling price.

What makes you think you can turn right around and sell this house at a profit? Particularly things in the real estate market in your area?

Do you have to move into the house? You'll get a slight break on the mortgage interest rate, of course, if the house goes on the lender's books as "owner occupied," rather than as an investment property, but doubt very much if the short-term savings would be enough to offset the cost and trouble of moving in and then promptly moving out once you do sell it.

You haven't given me much to go on here. You obviously are pretty wise in real estate since your investment is greater than your yearly income, but it seems to me that this is essentially a matter of buying and selling a property primarily for the sake of buying and selling it. Making a profit on the sort of quick turnover that you have in mind, and without improving it, frankly, doesn't make a lot of sense.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

I paid off my 30-year FHA mortgage in eight years. Am I entitled to a refund of a portion of the FHA insurance payments that I made during the eight years? If so, what is the address of the FHA office that I request a refund from?

Mrs. S.A.

Answer: Sure, you're entitled, all right, and with the fast payoff you should get back a substantial portion of what you paid. Your lender should have pointed this out to you and supplied you with the proper form for making application, at the time of the payoff, but he clearly didn't do it.

What you have to do now is go back to the lender and get the application for the FHA premium refund. Once you've filled it out, mail it to: Deputy Assistant Secretary, Single Family Housing and Mortgaged Activities, Room 9262, Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, 451 7th Ave., SW, Washington, D.C. 20416. The check you'll receive — the good news never ends — is also tax-free since the premiums were from after-tax income.

Angela M. Pinkston, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Pinkston of Granite City, was one of 16 students from Johnson University, Siloam Springs, Ark., to be named in the 1989 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Campus nominating committees and editors of the annual directory have included the names of these students based on their academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and potential for continued success.

Student to do Shakespeare

Adam Schneider, a senior at Culver-Stockton College, Canton, Mo., will perform in the school's upcoming production of Shakespeare's "Macbeth."

Schneider, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy and Schneider of Granite City, will play the role of Malcolm in the production. He is a theater major and a 1986 graduate of Granite City High School.

The play will be presented in the college's Alexander Campbell Auditorium Feb. 23-25 at 8 each night.

Central air conditioning systems are gaining in popularity all around the country, especially with outbreaks of hotter summers. If you are considering buying or retrofitting a system in your home in time for this summer, it's easiest if ducts are in place.

Before laying wallboard, drive nails slightly below the surface — deep enough to make a little dimple, not so deep that they'll break through the surface. Fill in the dimples with joint compound.

But if you don't have an expensive floral centerpiece, if you prop a couple of framed prints against the wall, you can't go wrong.

Neoprene and butyl caulk are often recommended for metal and masonry because of their elasticity; they give with temperature changes. Silicone is even better.

Transferred couples sometimes had trouble getting mortgages if the going along spouse hadn't found a new job. More lenders today are willing to count the spouse's pre-transfer income in qualifying.

Hearty health requires healthy heart

Regional Roundup

By Bill Winter

February usually is the coldest month of the year, so they warmed it up by including Valentine's Day, an occasion for hearts and flowers and romance.

In this era of increased health care competition, hospitals are emphasizing "heart health" this month. Elmhurst Medical Center checked the cholesterol and blood pressure of hundreds of local residents last week and this week.

Wellness Center participants this week are conducting "Hearts in Motion" walkathons, raising funds for the American Heart Association and the SEMC Cardiac Emergency Fund.

I PASSED MY TEST without even studying for it. My cholesterol reading was in the right range. I learned at the Wellness Center, which occupies the refurbished McKinley School. It was a mighty chilly evening but I was glad I was tested.

February is National Heart Month, and local observances will continue with talks Tuesday night, Feb. 21, on "Hypertension" and "Preventing Heart Disease with Diet."

Topics Wednesday night, Feb. 22, will be "Taking Control of Your Life — the Risk Factors of Heart Disease" and "Stress Management Through Lifestyle Change."

"NEW TREATMENTS for Heart Disease" will be explained Thursday night, Feb. 23, and an "Ask the Pharmacist" program is set for Friday afternoon, Feb. 24. All of these meetings are free to the public. Reservations can be made by calling 798-3822.

State news

Thompson asks more money for education

Topics R. Thompson will recommend a 9.2 percent increase in education funding in fiscal year 1990, taking the elementary and secondary education budget up to more than $3 billion and the higher education budget to nearly $1 billion.

Thompson told the chairman of the State Board of Education and the Illinois Board of Higher Education that the budget recommendation will not provide sufficient funds to meet all of the needs of education in the state, but that the total $344.6 million increase is a significant raise in spending from last fiscal year.

Thompson, who said the increase is possible due to budget restructuring, will give his recommendations in his Budget Address at a joint session of the General Assembly on March 1.

Attack on drug abuse to be three-pronged

Gov. James R. Thompson has proposed a $50 million, three-pronged attack on drug abuse in the state, bolstering the state's prevention, treatment and enforcement activities. The program would be funded by increasing the cigarette tax by 18 cents for each package, from 20 to 38 cents.

The program would provide $14 million in additional funding for education and prevention, $19 million for enforcement, and $17 million for treatment. The program would be aimed at increasing enforcement at state and treatment centers, intensifying the attack on drugged driving, adding more State Police to intercept drug couriers, and expanding the training of local police and sheriff's deputies.

"Your Blood Cholesterol Level: What It Means for Your Heart."

Also available free at the Wellness Center were publications on "Fitness for Life," "About High Blood Pressure," "Type-A Behavior Pattern," "How to Prevent Heart Disease," "How to Live a Lifetime," "An Older Person's Guide to Cardiovascular Health," and "Cardiac Rehabilitation."

Other materials included a discussion of stress management (Bob Turk can be called at 798-3018) and a local Heart Healthy Cookbook, which is to be sold.

SIX FACTS for a healthy heart also were explained.

Heart disease is the leading cause of death and a big contributor is believed to be the "American lifestyle": high-fat diet, lack of regular exercise, overweight and cigarette smoking. The American Heart Association recommends the following:

1. Have your blood pressure checked regularly. If it is high, cooperate with your doctor to keep it under control.

2. Don't smoke cigarettes; no cigarette is safe.

3. EAT FOODS LOW in saturated (animal) fats and cholesterol.

4. Maintain proper weight. If overweight, follow AHA suggestions to reduce while maintaining balanced, nutritious diet.

5. Exercise regularly to maintain cardiovascular fitness, but start with a doctor before beginning an exercise program.

6. Have regular medical checkups and follow your doctor's advice for reducing risks of suffering a heart attack.

A program on water problems and waste disposal problems for families living in unincorporated areas of Madison County will be held Thursday, Feb. 23, at 7:30 p.m. at the United Church of Christ, 215 E. Division St. in Marine.

The first part of the program is directed to families with a private well water system such as a well and cistern supplying water to the home. A speaker will talk about the types of private water systems, the treatment options and ways to solve problems related to private wells.

The second part of the program will cover waste disposal systems for the family home on a septic tank or other system.

For additional information on the program, persons may contact the Madison County Extension Office at 656-8400.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Illinois has a Good Samaritan statute. This law provides that if medical personnel provide emergency care to a person a medical practitioner unless there is willful or wanton misconduct. The question recently arose as to whether a doctor who rendered treatment in a hospital setting could avoid liability based on the Good Samaritan statute.

In this case, a young woman was admitted to a County Hospital for numbness and pain in her lower right leg and chest. She was 37 weeks pregnant at the time she was admitted. After admission, the woman experienced respiratory and cardiac distress.

A doctor who was attending to one of his patients in the hospital was summoned by one of the nurses. The doctor began respiratory and cardiac resuscitation. The patient's attending physician later arrived at the hospital and administered treatment. Eventually, the woman and her child were pronounced dead.

The deceased woman's husband, as administrator of his wife's estate, filed suit against all of the treating physicians and the hospital. Included as one of the defendants was the physician who rendered emergency care on a volunteer basis. The complaint alleged that this doctor failed to recognize the complications and the life-threatening condition of the fetus and failed to order cardiopulmonary resuscitation for the woman.

The doctor filed a motion for summary judgment, alleging that he charged no fee for his services and therefore cannot be liable for the Good Samaritan statute.

The trial court ruled that the Good Samaritan statute exempted the doctor from liability. On appeal, the plaintiff alleged that as a member of the hospital staff, the physician rendering emergency care had a preexisting duty to render assistance to the deceased and her unborn child. The plaintiff further maintained that the Good Samaritan statute only applied to emergencies arising outside of a hospital.

The Appellate Court upheld the decision of the trial court in relieving the physician rendering emergency care from any liability in this situation. The court ruled that the Good Samaritan statute clearly applied to a physician who had faith and without prior notice of the illness, rendered emergency care without charging a fee. The court felt that this was precisely the situation in the present case. Thus the Good Samaritan statute is applicable to emergencies arising both in and outside of a hospital.

Romantic comedy 'Cousins' lively depiction of interludes

"Cousins" (1/2) was inspired by "Cousin Cousine," the 1975 French hit comedy about people who find themselves separated by marriage and decide to meet for beyond the kissing-cousin stage.

For the most part, the movie is highly entertaining, charged with moments of wry wit and wisdom, and lively romantic interludes.

Mae West, who purred "To err is human, but it feels divine," would have loved "Cousins." To go step further, add a line from George Bernard Shaw: "For some philanderers 'sex' is an hors d'oeuvre, but to others it is a barbecue."

Just ask Larry and Maria (Ted Danson and Isabella Rossellini) who are friends and later relatives after Larry's uncle marries Maria's mother (Norma Aleandro).

And when Larry's wife, Tish (Sally Struthers), Maria's husband, Tom (William Petersen), have an affair, the ensuing romantic upheavals involve their entire families, including Larry's father, Vince (Lloyd Bridges) and Larry's son, Mitch (Keith Coogan).

Mix all this together and the result is a silly comedy that is a

The department of art and a sesquicentennial committee are planning a special gallery season titled "The Sesquicentennial Year," which will include a retrospective exhibition featuring works by former art faculty from the 1870s to the 1980s.

Other gallery events, which open in March, include lectures and a gala opening reception. The art faculty exhibition, the first of a three-part series, will open in the season in the Fine Arts Gallery. Stephen Metcalfe, who wrote the play "Strange Snow," wrote this new treatment of the French classic, turning the characters into contemporary Americans.

"Cousins" is a feel-good movie lacking the subtlety of its predecessor. But one thing is clear: Maria and women playing the game of love should realize that it is more important to know when how.

Rated PG-13 (language, sexual themes). Running time: 110 minutes. Ratings based on four stars.

Tom married too young for the wrong reasons and routinely runs around with other women. He is not prone to argue with himself about the merits of fidelity, and he loves his wife and daughter in his own funny way.

And so it goes with all the chickens coming home to roost when Vince decides to wed a woman whose husband has expired on the couch, leaving his garbage-collection business to run.

Bridges' performance as the good-humored hedonist Vince is the most memorable. He has the best lines and delivers them with relish. He plays a roistering patriarch suddenly aware that sensuality is not necessarily the vice of younger men. His relationship with grandson Mitch, a would-be professional artist, is delightfully fresh.

"Cousins" is a feel-good movie lacking the subtlety of its predecessor. But one thing is clear: Maria and women playing the game of love should realize that it is more important to know when how.

Rated PG-13 (language, sexual themes). Running time: 110 minutes. Ratings based on four stars.

Davis hopes to end record-breaking career in high style

By Dave Whaley

Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — His high school career has been, to say the least, an illustrious one. And Brent Davis might be saving the best for last.

The Warriors' senior wrestler will take a 44-1 season record and a 144-19 career mark into this weekend's state tournament at the Assembly Hall in Champaign. The three-time state and sophomore and junior noted Davis only a single win in three matches. Davis and his coach, Mike Garland, are hoping for "one more."

"I'll know what to expect this year," said Davis. "I know I have to go up there and just wrestle as well as I can. I can't just look past anybody."

Garland said he was caught looking ahead last year and was eliminated in the first round at state as a 112-pounder. He has had little trouble moving up to 125 this year, with only a 1-5 decision over McLean's Nathan West Mosley in the championship bout of the Granite City Holiday Tournament.

Brent is ranked second in the state by Grappler magazine. "If he could get to you, you would know what might happen. It's like all these basketball teams. The No. 1 team keeps getting beat. Anything can happen."

Davis is ranked behind Ken Garland of the Lower Providence in the 125 weight class. The two are in different brackets. The two are in different brackets and in the state championship bout.

"I see him settle up at state last year," Davis said. "I hope I can get that beat, but I'll have to win some other matches first."

For the second straight year, Garland is the only Davis to state. Last year's trip was an abbreviated one.

Brent has the ability to win it all," Garland said. "It would be terrible to just record all the hard work he has put in."

Davis broke Dean Perkins' Granite City career record for wins with his 19-10 win over Champaign's Chet Chappell in the sectional quarterfinals Friday.

Perkins was 141-9 from 1979-82. His title victory over Edwardsburg's Jeff Farley on Saturday gave him the school single season victory mark at 44, breaking the old mark shared by Doug Wilson (43-2 in 1971-72) and Jeff Clegg (43-2 in 1986-87).

Career record. Davis won regional and finished fourth in sectional as sophomore (14-1) and fifth in regional and won sectional as junior 112-pounder to advance to state (6-1 state); won regional and sectional as senior 125-pounder to advance to state.

NOTES: The state record for career wins is 178, set by Roselle Lake Park's Sam Garcia from 1984-88. Palatine's Mike Cheatham has the single season state mark with 18 wins in 1987-88.

Garland was disappointed that senior Bryan Pritchett didn't make state. "He was in a tough weight class," Garland said.

He was ahead going into the last period against Abby Myers, but Abby had a turnover and got two points. It was a little questionable (Myers won 6-5). Then (Ron) Mitra (Springfield Southeast) was a tough kid who has been to state before.

Pritchett finished 14-1 this year. Correction: It was stated in Wednesday's edition that 23 of the 39 state qualifiers from the Granite City Sectional came out of the 39 schools in the section. It should have said 12 came from Cahokia and 11 came from the Wood River Sectional. Preliminary round bouts start at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Assembly Hall. Davis will be on bye and won't wrestle until the first round, which is scheduled to begin at 12:30 p.m.

(against Smith) and it took me a while to get back into it."

Davis got started wrestling in second grade when his father, Glen, helped get him into a tournament in East Moline. He was beaten by an opponent who had snuck down from fifth grade to compete.

It was on to Grigsby Junior High School and then the various schools, where he was 31-6 as a freshman and he hasn't looked back since. College wrestling is on the horizon, but nothing has been decided. Davis said he has looked at Missouri and other schools, but this weekend is foremost on his mind.

Stone verbally commits to UNLV

By Dave Whaley

Executive sports editor

Scott Stone may or may not be a rebel, but he sure can handle the runnin' part.

Stone, the Warrior soccer team's leading scorer last fall, verbally committed to play his college soccer for the University of Nevada-Las Vegas Runnin' Rebels.

High school soccer players can only sign letters of intent until April 12. Stone, who had 15 goals, 14 and 13 assists in only 16 games last fall as the Warriors tied for third in the state tournament, is one of the top recruiting targets in the U.S. and head coach Barry Barto. Stone also considered Wright State, Western Illinois, SIUE and Syracuse.

"They were really impressed with him," Warrior coach Gene Baker said. "He's one of their major recruits, so he figures to get plenty of playing time. And he will do well. He has all that quickness."

Stone scored 24 goals and 17 assists for 65 points in two years of varsity play at GCHS. His strength was his lightning speed.

Barto is not allowed to comment on prospective recruits until the letter of intent is signed in April.

"I will say we are recruiting him and recruiting him diligently," said Stone.

Stone said he seriously considered SIUE and Wright State before committing to UNLV on a trip out there last fall.

"It was the school itself that sold me," he said. "I want to major in physical therapy and become a physical therapist. UNLV has the top-rated school in the country for that."

Stone, a team captain as a senior, broke the backs of many high school opponents and hopes to do the same on the NCAA Division I level before he begins healing injured backs. He'll have a couple to play right away.

"We lost a couple and there are some gaps to fill," said Barto of his team, which went 11-6-3 last year and advanced to the NCAAs Tournament before losing to Freshman State.

Stone said he won't be living far from Caesar's Palace, but he'll try to stay away from the shows and the casinos long enough to study and score some goals.

"The basketball team is such a big moneymaker that the soccer team has to get what it needs," Stone said. "They have an incredible field and a nice practice field, too. It's going to be great."

Barto will be starting his eighth year at UNLV after a stint at Philadelphia Textile. UNLV has an enrollment of 15,000 and the campus is located south of the Las Vegas strip.

Chris Ryan, the Warriors' other senior co-captain last year, earlier announced he will play in college soccer at Wisconsin-Parkside. The other senior, Bob Strubberg and Chris Nolan, are leaning toward Lewis and Clark Community College.

Trojans avoid 20-defeat season; pick up first road win at Gibault

By Mike Blackshire

WATERLOO — The Trojans were finally able to put together four good quarters and defeat the Gibault Hawks 67-58 on Tuesday.

The Hawks fell to 15-9 while the Trojans are 4-16 after breaking a four-game losing streak. The win gave Madison a 3-5 record over its last eight games and eliminated the ugly possibility of a 20-loss season.

Madison coach Al Collins has obviously had a very tough year.

But he does not want his players just going through the motions waiting for the season to end. He got the feeling they were doing that, so he got the players to move, so he took the team into the locker room and read the riot act.

"They were messin' around on the bench, so I went off on the team before the game," Collins said. "They have resisted everything we have told them all year. I told them, 'You have to play like you did all year' and we have won three games and tonight do it my way or get off the team.'

The pre-game talk lasted quite awhile and the officials came to Madison an extra three minutes before the opening tip. And for the second game in a row, the Trojans exploded out of the gate and outplayed their opponent in every phase of the game.

Davis got started wrestling in second grade when his father, Glen, helped get him into a tournament in East Moline. He was beaten by an opponent who had snuck down from fifth grade to compete.

It was on to Grigsby Junior High School and then the various schools, where he was 31-6 as a freshman and he hasn't looked back since. College wrestling is on the horizon, but nothing has been decided. Davis said he has looked at Missouri and other schools, but this weekend is foremost on his mind.

He shoots, he scooooooores!

'Like Secretariat in the Belmont,' Dan Kelly dominated his field

Sports Comment

By Dave Whaley

First of all, let me say there are a lot of people who did more important things than Dan Kelly. So this is not intended to be compared with the death of a world leader.

Having said that, let it be said that Dan Kelly's death Saturday was a monumental loss to hockey. Before every commercial break in the 20 years Kelly broadcast Blues games, he said, "This is St. Louis Blues hockey."

Dan Kelly was St. Louis Blues hockey.

Considering the Blues were merely one of the league's average teams for almost all of Kelly's career here, Blues fans can consider themselves spectacularly fortunate that they were graced by his presence behind the microphone.

Perhaps it was Bob Costas who summed it up best recently when he said Kelly's dominance on the air was something that was like Secretariat in the Belmont. Dan was, indeed, at least 31 lengths ahead of the rest of the field, and the others content to leave it out for second place. By conservative estimate, I would say I heard Dan call something like 1,500 hockey games in my life. It was apparent early how good he was at it. I wondered if everyone was that good or if we were just lucky. As the years went by, it was apparent that Kelly was as far and wide as the best. He was called on for every major hockey broadcast, "from Maine to Miami," as he said on the national broadcast.

He did the Olympics, the Stanley Cup Playoffs, the Canada Cup, the All-Star Game. If you heard someone else doing a good job, you could bet it was because Kelly was unavailable for some reason.

St. Louis area fans took pride in Kelly when he did national broadcasts because we could claim him as one of our own. He was hockey's answer to Jack Buck. But even in Buck's case, there was a time when he could not be reached by Vin Scully or Jon Miller or others as the best baseball broadcasters. There was never a down day for Kelly.

For all of his national work, Blues fans knew him best for the local broadcasts. Kelly was there to describe the exploits of stars like Jacques Plante and Bernie the Bingers, Garry Unger, Bernie Fedoruk, Brian Sutter, Mike Liut, Wayne Babych, Doug Gilmour and Steve Bly. He was there for magic moments in Blues history, like dramatic playoff series-winning overtime goals from Kevin O'Shea, Mike Crombeen and Jerry Pellegrino.

The last road game he did was Nov. 17 in Philadelphia, when the Blues ended a 17-year, 34-

Kelly survived by wife, 6 children

Dan Kelly, the "Voice of the St. Louis Blues" for 21 years was known in all professional hockey leagues as the master of his trade.

In January he received the Lester Patrick Award, the National Hockey League's highest honor for a non-player/coach, for his "outstanding service to hockey in the United States."

Born Sept. 17, 1936, in Ottawa, Ont., Kelly, who died Saturday, began his broadcasting career at the age of 19, calling hockey action as well as football and baseball at CJET Radio in Sudbury, Ont. He became sports director at CJET Radio in 1958-59 in Sudbury, Ont., where he was voice of the Sudbury Wolves hockey team.

Kelly joined CBC-TV in 1960 and worked for the network in football games before joining Hockey Night in Canada in 1963-66. Two years later, Kelly moved to St. Louis to broadcast Blues games.

Kelly did extensive national television work during the past two decades, including: NHL/CBS Game of the Week (1970-71), NHL-TV Network Games (1977-79), USA Cable Network (1981-83) and ESPN Cable (1985-87).

In spite of his grueling schedule, Kelly found time to commentate on hockey, speaking at countless banquets and running hockey clinics in the area.

At a banquet honoring Kelly in January, NHL president A. Ziegler J. referred to him as "hockey's leading ambassador."

The Mass of the Resurrection was held for Kelly at 10 a.m. Monday at Ascension Catholic Church in Collinsville. Burial was at Resurrection Cemetery.

Kelly is survived by his wife, Frances Gaia Kelly, and children Cathy Kelly, 29; John Kelly, 27; Karen Kelly, 23; and Dan Kelly Jr., 15.

Also surviving are Kelly's mother, Gertrude; his brother, Hal Kelly; and his sister, Sister Teresa Kelly, a Catholic nun.

Kelly did extensive national and provided them with valuable insight, never ceasing to amaze his colleagues with his unerring calls.

Buck kidded Kelly that there was no way anyone could actually see the puck hit the post, but Dan always did, even if he missed it. As the years went on and nearly all of the NHL players donned helmets, it became his job to remember to encourage individual players at a second's notice. Kelly did it and made it seem easy.

The Blues seemed almost obliged to commemorate Kelly in some way. Some have suggested naming a new arena after him. But that's assuming one will be built. Others have suggested retiring a number. But what number? 1120 (the KMOX frequency)? Another idea—bright idea to install a chair — to forever sit empty — in the KMOX radio booth at the Arena.

The Voice of Hockey — The Voice of Hockey — was silenced on Friday, but the legacy and the memories will live on. If you don't have a tape of Dan Kelly broadcasting a hockey game, get one. You'll not only appreciate a vivid description of the world's most beautiful game, but you'll remember the joy of hearing something done the way it should be done.

Goodbye, Dan. As a final tribute we say:

He shoots, he scooooooores!

Cougars gun for NCAA bid tonight

By Al Barnes
Correspondent

The SIUE Cougars will try to capture a post-season bid to the Great Lakes Collegiate tonight when they face Kentucky Wesleyan in Owensboro, Ky.

Although SIUE (19-6) defeated the Panthers 88-77 Jan. 13 at the Vadalabene Center, it has been a difficult road to any winning team to win at Wesleyan through the years. The Panthers have a 10-4 record at road-court advantage over the Cougars.

But things are looking bright for Larry Graham's team.

They rolled to a 96-67 win over Quincy Saturday, the Cougars' 15th straight home win. SIUE hardly had to sweat in front of a crowd of Park College of Kansas City at home on Friday. The Cougars had been as high as seventh in the national division II rankings but had a pair of road defeats. Now they visit Wesleyan, which is 20-5.

The Cougars have two more road games at Kentucky State Feb. 20 and Northern Kentucky on Feb. 25. In the win over Quincy, the Cougars got outstanding games from Odell Tidwell (22 points), Tim Brown (21), Phil Wahl (13) and Frankie Kelly's most famous partner was Gus Kelly, the former NHL defenseman and coach who was known for his good nature and good humor.

Dixon to drive for new owner

By Joe Senter
Correspondent

GRANITE CITY — Ed Dixon, the Allied Auto Racing Fan Association three-time modified champion, will be driving for new owner this year.

Carrie and Sandy Barzoff of Granite City have bought out the M & E racing team of Washington, Mo., owned by Dixon and his family. Dixon will be back at the wheel under the name of B Auto Racing Team and will be running his famous No. 50 car under that name. The Barzoffs are owners of B Auto Parts in Granite City.

The car has a big block Chevy engine with special Buick racing heads and a 416 C.I. engine, developing more than 700 horsepower. The 1987 car, owned by C.J. Rayburn, chassis was built by Tim Snell of Madison. The car has been completely refurbished for the 1989 season by Bar-zoff, Jim Wilson, Scott Christ and Dixon.

The car was put on display at the St. Louis Auto Racing Fan Association's annual meeting in Belleville. Barzoff is also building a garage to hold the building team's entire tow. Barzoff, an ex-drag racer, is hoping he and Dixon can enter in several special races this year at Tri-City Speedway.

pressure and a balanced offensive attack, the Trojans jumped out to a 17-5 lead, forcing coach Dennis Rueter to call a timeout with 1:53 left in the quarter.

"Apparently their problem has been not playing hard the whole game, but they did tonight," Rueter said. "We didn't play well and we let them get going. They outplayed us, and they should have won."

The Trojans have simply not done the things teams needs to do to win in most of their games. But on Tuesday they did everything well and looked more like a 16-4 team than a 4-16 team."

After gaining the early advantage, Madison was very patient in running its offense, which has been a problem.

"Before the game, I told the team that it is very simple, either run the offense or come sit next to me on the bench," Collins said.

The Trojans got high-percentage shots all night and made them. In other games, missed shots and bad shot selection have provided easy points for the opposition. But on Tuesday it was the Trojans shooting layups who the Hawks were forcing to sit.

Madison was also impressive at the free-throw line, especially in the clutch, hitting 11 of 15 attempts. Senior Aaron Jones, who had the team's fourth-best points, was 4 for 9 from the line and senior Tim Smith (15 points) hit 4 of 5 in the last 61 seconds to prevent Gibault from fouling its way back into the game.

The Hawks trailed by 11 at the end of both the second and third quarters, but made a run at the start of the fourth quarter. Gibault made nine three-pointers on the night and pulled within five, 54-49, with 4:59 left.

But the Trojans kept their poise and kept getting points.

The Trojans spread out the court to take some time off of the clock, forcing the Hawks to come out and foul. The Trojans hit the free throws and took their first road win of the year.

After winning the early advantage, Madison was very patient

"I didn't realize Claggett had 20 points in the first half," said Haskins. "He's a great player and the other team is sagging in with a zone like they were."

Claggett has emerged as one of the team's premier three-point specialists, averaging nearly 10 per game this year and shooting 50 percent from beyond the stripe. He is shooting 56 percent as a whole and has his scoring average up to 12.5.

Claggett scored 12 points in the first half and Davis took a 21-15 lead. King finished off the first-half scoring on a beautiful alley-oop pass from Claggett for a dunk and a 40-28 lead. But the Minutemen scored six straight points in the third quarter and trimmed the margin to 42-34 with 4:55 left when Harris called a timeout.

Harris was running down and shooting in a hurry for some reason, he said. "We shot well from outside early, but we had to slow down and take better shots in the second half."

The Devils managed to hang on, though, and Davis' basket exploded at the start of the fourth quarter. King, Jackson and Claggett all scored on fast breaks and it was suddenly 57-54. Claggett later fed John White for a pair of buckets to open up a 69-45 lead.

"I wanted to get the senior home tonight for their last home game," Harris said.

Bunker Hill looks to be good enough to make some noise in their regional, but the Minutemen are in the same regional with Wesclin, so it will be tough for veteran coach Jim Haskins and his team to win.

"We had a very good practice yesterday," Harris said. "We're getting there. The serious games start next week."
